

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Sigrun Høgetveit Berg (1972) is postdoctoral fellow of History at the Department of History and Religious Studies at UiT – The Arctic University of Norway. Her main research interest is the relations between church and society, and her postdoctoral project is on the role of the northern church organization in the state's high north policies in the Reformation centuries.

Rognald Heiseldal Bergesen (1966) is postdoctoral fellow of Art History at the Department of Culture and Literature at UiT – The Arctic University of Norway. His main interests are use and functions of Medieval and Early Post-Reformation church art, and his postdoctoral project is about non-Sámi images of Sámi religion.

Ingebjørg Aamlid Dalen (1985) is a PhD student in History at the Department of History and Religious Studies at UiT – The Arctic University of Norway. Her PhD project is titled: "The Post-Reformation's Priesthood in Northern Norway: Recruitment, education and social networks."

Lars Ivar Hansen (1947) is professor of Medieval and Early Modern history at the Department of History and Religious Studies at UiT – The Arctic University of Norway. Among his fields of research interest are the inter-ethnic relations between the peoples of northern Fennoscandia.

Per Ingesman (1953) is Professor of Church History at Aarhus University. His main area of research is Danish and European ecclesiastical history in the Late Medieval and Early Modern period.

Evgeny Khodakovsky (1974) is head of the Department of Russian Art History, St. Petersburg State University and Associate Professor in Art History. His fields of interest are Russian and Northern European Medieval art and the wooden architecture of Russia and Scandinavia.

Roald E. Kristiansen (1953) is associate professor of Religious Studies at the Department of History and Religious Studies at UiT – The Arctic University of Norway. His main research interests are church history of Northern Norway, northern contextual theology, Sámi religion and East Asian religions.

Siv Rasmussen (1963) is a PhD student in History at the Department of History and Religious Studies at UiT – The Arctic University of Norway. Her main research interest is in Sámi history with a focus on religious practice and integration in the ecclesiastical system in the Early Modern period.

Dikka Storm (1948) is Curator and Associate Professor at the Department of Cultural Sciences, Tromsø University Museum at UiT – The Arctic University of Norway. Her research interests are Sámi culture and society with focus on the Coast Sámi population in the county of Troms in Northern Norway.